

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Winner of $400,000 Stamp to be Announced Live January 12 in Charlotte, by Miss New Jersey, for StampWants.com

CHARLOTTE, NORTH CAROLINA – January 11, 2008 – What started as a giveaway of a $275,000 stamp a little over a year ago, concludes tomorrow live at the APS Ameristamp Expo in Charlotte, as Miss New Jersey announces the winner of the StampWants.com C3a Inverted Jenny Giveaway, which now has a Scott Catalog value of $400,000; $125,000 more than when the giveaway was first announced.

The 1918 24¢ Inverted Jenny stamp is the most popular and desired philatelic error in the world. Since December of 2006, when StampWants.com first announced their promotion, the Catalog Value of the C3a has skyrocketed - no doubt in large part due to the excitement of this unprecedented giveaway. By next year the stamp is on track to be worth even more than ever, considering the recent record breaking sales of single C3a's - on November 14, 2007 when a single exceptionally centered C3a was sold by Robert A. Siegel Auction Galleries for $977,500, and as recently as December 26, 2007 when Heritage Auction Galleries sold a never hinged example for $825,000.

"Since the start of our giveaway we've seen our membership grow from 4,000 registered users to over 20,000 registered users. The majority of our members have entered the giveaway several times, and in total we have well over half a million entries", said Mark Rosenberg, StampWants.com's President and CEO. "We started this giveaway with the intention of attracting more people to the stamp hobby - and it looks like we've succeeded. Most of our members don't just register and enter our giveaway; they buy and sell stamps on our website, and participate in our forums."

The C3a was printed in 1918, when the center image of the Curtis JN-4 (Jenny) airplane was accidentally printed upside down.

For more information on the StampWants.com C3a Inverted Jenny Giveaway, and for official rules visit: www.StampWants.com

For more information on the APS Ameristamp Expo visit the APS website: www.stamps.org

ABOUT STAMPWANTS.COM

StampWants.com is an online marketplace and community connecting stamp dealers and collectors around the world; offering auction, fixed price, and store inventory listings as well as free tools and services. StampWants.com stands out in its industry with unrivaled customer service and low selling fees.

Media Contact:

Amy Roman
(609) 481-7535
amy@stampwants.com

###